Trustees Indorse Carmel-P. G. Road

In face of the fact that on November 20th the local chamber of commerce passed unanimously a resolution opposing the proposed direct road from Pacific Grove to this city, through the lands of the Del Monte Properties Company, our city board of trustees, at Wednesday night's meeting, adopted Perry Newberry's motion to indorse the project. The vote was three to one. Trustee Kibbler, Maxwell and Newberry voted in the affirmative and Trustee Parkes in the negative.

Newberry stated that he had looked into the scheme and he felt that the road would be a good thing for Carmel. Miss Parkes explained her negative vote by the statement that she would like to know more about the proposition before going on record in favor.

C. O. Goold made plain his opposition to the project by the assertion that it was an unnecessary and ill-advised scheme. He thought that the money that this road would cost (estimated at $30,000 to $35,000) might better be spent to maintain and reinforce the present road between Carmel and Monterey.

The result of Trustee Maxwell's calling the attention of the board, at its last meeting, to the poor lighting service supplied this city was that H. M. Buck, regional manager of Coast Valleys Gas & Electric Company, appeared before the board on Wednesday night. He stated that he was aware of the inadequate service in some parts of the city, and that his company, now under new management, was doing and would continue to do all that it could to give one hundred per cent service.

The sewer matter was again put over. It will be taken up at an adjourned meeting on January 16th, when City Engineer H. D. Severance is expected to be present to consult with and advise the board.

Ordinance No. 54, which has to do with the establishment of city zoning, was given first reading. There will be three zones. No. 1, business zone; No. 2, hotel and apartment house zone; No. 3, residential zone.

When Marshal Englund's monthly police report was read there was some discussion as to why certain misdemeanor cases were not tried by or brought before Recorder J. W. Hand. The marshal explained that in some cases it was necessary to place the culprits in jail, and as Carmel has no such institution, he took them over the hill for confinement and trial. However, it was decided to ask Judge Hand and Marshal Englund to appear at the next meeting to thresh the matter out.

Early Interest in City Election

Though Carmel's municipal election will not be held until next April, the voters are already asking who will be the candidates for the various offices—trustees, city clerk, treasurer.

No one has yet definitely announced a candidacy for trustee, though a number of names have been mentioned, among them George M. Dorwart and Henry P. Larouette. The present city clerk and city treasurer will no doubt be candidates to succeed themselves.

Trustees whose terms expire are Thomas B. Reardon, Perry Newberry and William L. Maxwell.

Major George W. Fishback and wife, who were killed in an automobile accident in Santa Barbara last Monday, were well known in Carmel, having resided here during 1916.

Cyril to Manage Arts and Crafts

Growth is the law of life and growth means change.

The Carmel Club of Arts and Crafts, with years of steady and harmonious work to its credit, has, with the rapid growth of Carmel, increased its membership and expanded its field.

New working plans are being developed from the old which served so well.

At a recent directors' meeting the policies here outlined were presented and accepted.

To members are offered the following advantages:

First. At all Arts and Crafts entertainments members will be privileged to secure reserved seats for the price of an ordinary admission ticket. This to be in effect for the next play.

Second. The club will resume its former custom of offering at monthly meetings, and also at other times, informal entertainmens and social gatherings, arranged by the entertainment committee, to which all members are invited. Non-members to be admitted on paid ticket.

Third. As heretofore, members will have the privilege of renting the hall for afternoon or evening entertainments at a nominal cost, now fixed at five dollars, for light, heat and Janitor service.

With the opening of the new theater and the more ambitious program outlined in consequence, the club requires a business like management to reduce overhead expenses, to coordinate—in a word—to develop system.

By unanimous vote the directors have created the position of manager, placed it on a business basis, and named for it Arthur Cyril, with whom the directors are now in conference.

Joy Was Unconfined

Carmelites and visiting friends saw the old year out and the new year in at various places on the peninsula. A large number dined and — danced at John Jordan's hospitable Pine Inn, others found their fin-de-anne pleasures at Carmel Highlands Inn where Miss Ella Shaw and E. H. Tickle were the joy dispensers, but by far the largest number found their way to Del Monte to enjoy what Carl Stanley had prepared for them.

Puppets Delight Large Numbers

The Kegg-Goldsmith marionettes were quite busy during the holiday season, and are booked ahead for some time. Recently they played to 800 orphans, the show being sponsored by the San Francisco Grain Trade Association; there were two charity performances at the Children's Hospital, and two also at the Mission center Y. W. C. A. On the 16th of this month they will play at the Dominican College in San Rafael.

Local Students Too

With definite dates shortly to be fixed, Edward G. Kuster announces that next summer a school of the theatre will be inaugurated in this city. The classes will be held at the new Theater of the Golden Bough. The faculty will include several instructors of wide reputation, and students will come from all parts of the country.

Spirit of Joy in Old-Time Custom

The children's Twelfth night party at Arts and Crafts last Saturday evening went off with a rush of spirits. The holiday setting, the gay supper tables, the Twelfth-night cake, the crowning of the King of the Bean (Leon Wilson), the well-practiced dances and games on the stage, Virginia Burton's swift grace in her solo dance, the vivid unexpectedness of the Lord of Misrule and his satellites, the music that made a luminous background to the entire evening—all these were fused with a warm gay kindliness that is good to remember.

Much is due to Hobart Glassell, who, as Lord of Misrule, in a costume that stunned the traditionalists, took the party into his hands and kept it going as a juggler tosses a ball. Even the spectators were swept in by him and had moments of being silly and glad as though they too were children. His assistants—Arthur Cyril, Ernest Schweninger, Talbert and Winsor Josselyn—played up to him with clever fooling.

Incidentally a very pretty controversy has been started; the traditionalists are dazed as by seeing a Comic strip superimposed upon an old English print, while the insurgents rejoice believing they recognize the same gay spirit of comedy here that first in the middle ages upset the tradition of Twelfth night as a purely religious festival and made of it the merry thing we now look back to. The insurgents have an excellent argument in the very word Mis-rule and the bid you notice the prefix, Mis—not order and tradition, but the upsetting of order and tradition.

Warmest thanks are offered also to Mrs. A. E. Burton, who inspired the whole thing, to Mrs. Woodward, who trained the dancers, to Dr. Burton, our Carmel Prospero, who by his magic art evolved setting out of nothing, to Rhoda Johnson, undaunted wardrobe mistress, to Mrs. E. A. Kluegel and her efficient supper committee, to Miss J. M. Culbertson and Miss Ida A. Johnson, practiced hands at cocoa making, to those generous friends who helped to provide the supper, to the Boy Scouts, to Miss Blanche Tolmie and Mrs. Roberta A. Leitch for the waissail song, and most of all perhaps to the musicians, Miss Isabel Logie at the piano and Mr. Colman with his violin, stirring old memories with their dear old tunes.

And next year let's have another party.

SUSAN PORTER,

Marshal Magnanimous

A couple of wild fellows, innoculated with dynamic hooch, were celebrating too hilariously on our Ocean avenue on New Year's eve. Gus Englund took them in charge, and while he was taking them over to the Monterey Bastile one of the men bit the marshal on the arm in several places. That's a felony. But Gus only placed a charge of disturbing the peace against the men.

The celebrants contributed $60.00 each to the the Monterey treasury last Wednesday in final settlement of their New Year escapade.

A number of the faculty of San Jose high school with their families were here for the week-end and New Year. They included Principal Raymond W. Leland and wife, Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Croney, Miss Irene Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Nicholson, Miss Ida Fellager and Miss Bessie Cole.

Perry Newberry to Sow Wild Oats

Interest in the second dramatic production in our new Arts and Crafts theater next Friday and Saturday evenings is growin and there will be a scramble for tickets as soon as they are placed on sale.

Wild Oats, the play to be given, is written and produced by the versatile Perry Newberry, who has his heart on putting over an offering which will be an artistic and financial success, and to this end has assembled a fine cast, better, if that were possible, than appeared in his last production, Doubling in Brass.

This cast so far as it has been disclosed, is as follows:

Miss Mary Forbes—Frances Glassell.
Lorraine, dramatist—Georgia White.
Mrs. Reginald Varden Jones—Daisy Bostick.
Louise, a French maid—Tilly Polak.
Alice, Swedish maid—Helen Judson.
Mrs. Clara Forbes—
Fred Jones, Prizefight manager—Jack Elsner.
Battling Gregg, prizefighter—Frank Berkey.
Bill Brent, a prizefight promoter—Charles Berkey.
Reginald Varden Jones — Andrew Jacobsen.

Another Open Letter to William T. Kibbler

William T. Kibbler, Chairman of the Board of Trustees of Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Sir: I am patiently awaiting a reply to my open letter to you, published in the Carmel Pine Cone, Dec. 22, 1923.

Considering that you are chairman of the board of trustees, you should be fully familiar with all the city's business affairs and therefore in a position, without any great mental effort, to make answer to my inquiries. Still awaiting an answer.

H. P. LAROUETTE.

Carmel, Jan. 3. 1924.

Last Night's Local Mass Meeting

The Pine Cone goes to press on Friday afternoon and is delivered to the public on Saturday morning.

The foregoing statement is necessary to account for our failure to publish an account of last night's local mass meeting called to discuss the proposed Pacific Grove-Carmel road.

The circular calling the meeting, is signed "Perry H. Newberry, Chairman Committee, Carmel-by-the-Sea," and further states "Come and listen to the plans, the arguments—then speak your mind."

Prehistoric Finds

Robert Pierson, stone mason, made a unique find recently. In a piece of Carmel Valley chalk rock, recently blasted out, he found, firmly embedded, a shark tooth in a splendid state of preservation. The find was sent to the Smithsonian Institute at Washington for a report, but was returned with the information that a professor at the University of California was an authority on such things.

Canned Abalones

As football players the Carmel Abalones are good deckhands. The Monterey Cometa won the game last Sunday, 28 to 0. Carmel's representatives lost because they relied too much on the passing game—passing the buck.

CIVIC BETTERMENT FOR 1924

We have entered upon a new year. Individuals have no doubt made their personal resolves for 1924. Perhaps little thought has been given to municipal matters. They are many and vital. We should at least have a tentative program of old projects we would like to see completed and of new ones inaugurated. The list is a long one, but the outstanding matters to be early considered are these:

Complete the soldier memorial so that it can be dedicated on May 30.

Install a sewer system that will be adequate and satisfactory to all sections of the city that need it.

Make an attractive park space in the center of Ocean avenue.

Place street name signs at all intersections. The permanent resident desires this as much as the visitor needs it.

Provide for keeping clean the gutters and catch-basins on Ocean avenue and intersections.

Build the Ralph Chandler Harrison Memorial Library as soon as possible.

A DESERVED TRIBUTE

Steps have been taken that will preserve the birthplace of Mark Twain near Hanibal, Mo. The old Clemens farm will be taken over by a memorial association [illegible] known Missouri's most famous son through his books will join the home folks in being glad that this is so. He worked in the California mines and edited a paper in Virginia City.

There can be no question of the genius of Samuel L. Clemens. He is not only the best known of all Missourians, but he is probably one of the best known of all Americans. As perspective gives us a new view of Mark Twain the picture improves. The present mature generation recalls the time when Samuel L. Clemens was known as a humorist. His "Roughing It," his "Tom Sawyer" and other volumes caught the fancy of the youth of 30 years ago for their humor. As the generation grew it discovered that Mark Twain in these books was a historian, a poet, a traveler. His description of the beauties of the Hawaiian Islands and the giant volcanic monsters of the Pacific stand today as the last word on these two subjects. They are not funny. They are magnificent.

The later generations have learned that Mark Twain's erudition is not that of humorist. His "Joan of Arc" is a classic. Nor should it be forgotten that Mark Twain was a great publisher. He paid in one check nearly a half a million dollars to Mrs. Grant for her share of the royalties on the "Grant Memoirs." He was one of the first Americans to see the future of mechanical typesetting. Our copyright laws were fathered and nurtured by Mark Twain. Missouri has been slow to recognize her greatest son, but it is not too late to mend and the memorial enterprise now well in hand will preserve to the world much that will help many unborn generations to know all they should know of one of the most engaging personalities that ever passed across the canvas of life.

BOOKS AND AUTHORS

One of the Four Big Ones

Charles Caldwell Dobie, who was in Carmel a short time ago on the occasion of the production of his "Doubling in Brass," is a much-printed author nowadays. In this month's Century he has a San Francisco Chinatown story, and in Harper's "The Cracked Teapot," a psychological study, also in a San Francisco setting. In a collection of short stories by Edward J. O'Brien, Dobie is placed among the first four short story writers in this country today.

Trend of Educational Thought

Dr. Alexander Meiklejohn is the latest in the world of education to discover that on the whole we do not want and will not tolerate the free fine spirit experimentally trying to make education produce the thinking man. He has said farewell to Amherst, where he was president, amidst the bitter regrets and vigorous protests of a large proportion of [illegible] lege" contains his farewell address to them, besides a number of essays and addresses which are thoughtful, brilliant, suggestive discussions of education in various phases and of certain religious and social relationships. They show in general the trend of forward-looking educational thought, and in particular they betray, as in their obvious sincerity they must, a peculiarly fine and serviceable man who is an educator for just one reason: because he loves the great work.

A Fine Volume

"St. Nicholas Book of Verse" has been thoughtfully compiled from all the fifty years of St. Nicholas by Mary Budd Skinner and Joseph Osmun Skinner. The best verse for children has long come to St. Nicholas. It began its career with contributions from Tennyson, Eugene Field, James Whitcomb Riley and other famous poets, and has gone on with contributors of like caliber; while a book of verse from its pages has a very particular advantage, as Dr. Hall, the psychologist and educator suggests, in that the editing of St. Nicholas has been so very close to the wishes and real appreciation of children.

Problems of the Near East

It is one thing to write absorbing, colorful, exciting travel narrative—it is quite another, and a greater, thing to make a story just as intensely interesting, exactly as easy to follow, of the international intrigue and native aspirations of the Near East of recent years. Major Powell has done this in "The Struggle for Power in Moslem Asia," and moreover has done it with a singular fearlessness and candor. "I propose," he says, "when the narrative requires it to substitute 'petroleum' for 'self-determination,' 'political ambitions' for 'national obligations,' 'imperialism' for 'altruism.'"—and this he has done. The book is a remarkable building-up of a perfectly comprehensible, incomparably vivid and acutely interesting picture of the real Near East, with all all its problems and potentialities.

What Other People Think

"WITH MALICE TOWARD NONE, WITH CHARITY FOR ALL . . ."

The Pine Cone solicits articles or communications on constructive public improvement. We desire to give the fullest publicity to both sides of any controversy that may arise. We feel that the people of Carmel can and will discuss fairly and openly, without rancor or bitterness, matters pertaining to the collective life of Carmel. In order to promote a friendly constructive effort, we ask that all contributions be signed. Communications sent anonymously or signed with a fictitious name will not be published.

More Notes From Faust

Another sheaf of letters has come to the Pine Cone office concerning the Faust criticism written by John H. Flanner and published in the Peninsula Herald. It should be borne in mind that in no way is the Carmel Club of Arts and Crafts involved in the controversy. The criticism and letters are directed solely at the performance those who took part therein.

In booking attractions, an organization, a theater, or an individual frequently takes a chance on the quality of the entertainment. The letters follow.

Longs to Hear Miss Cross Again

It is to be regretted that this presentation should have been attempted—and in the Arts and Crafts Theater.

The critic's remarks I thought cruel; the few white lies were indeed missing, but I cannot feel that the truth can be anything but constructive.

Miss Cross has a promising voice of good quality, her stage presence pleasing, her French enunciation commendable.

Mr. Flanner's severe criticism may give her the cue she needs. I hope to hear her again in a different musical setting.

ROBERTA A. LEITCH

The Value of An Empty Cigar Box

The biggest joke about the recent grand opera production was that there were some people who accepted it seriously.

Personally I thought it had the value of an empty cigar box; the name Faust was emblazoned in red and gold on the outside, but nothing good was inside.

Such performances ruin the interest of the people in all musical events. Carmel has always encouraged the finest, and we have no room for inferior stuff such as one piano, one wheezy organ, three singers squeaking in three different languages, including Rameses, the tenor.

Lecture on Christian Science

Entitled "Christian Science: The Solution of the World's Problems," by John Randall Dunn, C.S.B., of Boston, Massachusetts, Member of the Board of Lectureship of the Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Boston, Mass.

Given in Arts and Crafts Theater, Carmel, Sunday, December 30.

You have noticed many times, without doubt, a certain inscription over exits from buildings and cars which reads: "This Way Out." Often have I wished that I might write below this the words "Christian Science," for every student of this great subject realizes more and more that the understanding and practical application of the Science of Christianity affords the only definite way of the many problems which confront and perplex humanity today.

Let us now consider the case of a man "financially sick," or who may be said to have "a sick business." Can this spiritual understanding of creation help him? Even so. Possibly every business [illegible] that a higher, happier and more hopeful view of things would work wonders in the business world. No realm is more susceptible to mental influences than the so-called business world. Superstition, fear, [illegible] to, and if not checked and nullified by the action of Tuth, these may work much mischief with the individual, the community, or the nation. Should it be thought unreasonable that the Word of God, the reflection of infinite Mind, which in Jesus' time stilled storms and raised the dead, should be able in our day to quiet fear, restore confidence, bring about harmony in an organization, and promote and bring to success a righteous business venture?

Thinking men of every shade of creed and politics agree that in a quickening of the world's religious or spiritual sense lies the salvation of the perplexed and war-weary human family. And there they stop. And there Christian Science begins, for it alone offers that practical salvation which begins with the individual's thinking, and in renovating and spiritualizing this is destined to save both men and nations. Right thinking, therefore, is the remedy; and when you have a right-thinking individual or a right-thinking nation, you find health and harmony and peace.

Picture, if you will, a life-saver heroically battling with the waves in the effort to pull ashore a shipwrecked man or woman. Then imagine, if you can, others standing on the shore, and instead of encouraging the rescuer and assisting in the grand work of rescue, jeering and taunting the rescuer, criticising his methods and predicting disaster. A rather unthinkable picture, is it not? And yet this very thing happens in thousands of instances daily when some earnest Christian Scientist attempts the work of rescue for a shipwrecked brother or sister. Material medicine scoffs, old theology hurls its anathema, the worldly-minded sneer and shrug their shoulders; and, in spite of all this, the sick and sinning and heartbroken are being rescued in ever-increasing numbers. What glorious quick healing work may we expect to see with increased consecration on the part of practitioner and patient, and a lessened hatred and intolerance with the onlooking brethren not of our fold. So the Christian Science life-saver refuses to be dismayed or discouraged. He is grateful that he is doing as well as he is, and prays for understanding and grace to do better work in the future.

Life of Lincoln in the Films

A splendid presentation of the life of Lincoln, giving the outstanding events of his career, is to be released by the Rockett-Lincoln Film Company of Hollywood. Years of careful research were required to produce the authentic scenes, and interviews with those who knew Lincoln did much to add to the attractiveness and human interest of "The Dramatic Life of Abraham Lincoln." In the rude farm cabin in Kentucky, where Lincoln was born, and later in the Indiana and Illinois homes, his struggle for an education is strikingly portrayed. When he was nine years of age his mother died, and the daughter, two years older than Abraham, kept house for the sorrowing family. A little later his stepmother came into his life. Her advent greatly improved the family circumstances, for she proved to be of cheerful nature and encouraged the boy in his studies, which his father regarded as a form of idleness. With less than a year of school attendance Lincoln made the most of his limited opportunities and with the help of his stepmother he gained an education.

While working for a neighbor he took produce to New Orleans on a flatboat. Here he came into conscious contact with slavery, witnessing an auction sale of Negroes. This made a deep impression on the boy and he vowed that if ever the opportunity came to "hit" that system he would "hit it hard." When Lincoln was twenty-one the family moved from Indiana to Illinois where Abraham helped break the prairie soil into farm land. He vounteered in the Black Hawk War and later became a candidate for the legislature. He failed in this first political venture and purchased a store, which venture also proved a failure. To business disaster was added the stern discipline of love and a lover's bereavement. He wooed and won Anne Rutledge, who shortly after the engagement died of a sudden illness. This so unmanned him that his friends feared for his sanity. Later he was admitted to the bar and entered politics in earnest. His debate with Stephen A. Douglas was a notable event of that period.

This portrayal of Lincoln in the films affords an opportunity for greater continuity of action than that permitted by Drinkwater's spoken drama, which necessarily was episodal.

University Art Courses

Four new courses dealing with the different phases of art are to be offered by the extension division of the University of California, starting during the week of January 14-21. The four courses announced to start at that time are appreciation of art, fundamentals of design and color composition, commercial art and the art of building as concerned in domestic architecture.

Appreciation of art will be given under the direction of Professor Eugene Neuhaus of the University Art department. The class will have its first meeting at 8 o'clock Friday evening, January 18, at the extension division headquarters in the Pacific building, San Francisco.

Two different classes in the fundamentals of design and color composition are to be given by Miss Marian Hartwell. The beginners' class will meet first on Thursday evening, January 17, in the Pacific building, while an afternoon class of advanced work will begin Friday afternoon, January 18, at the same place.

The course in commercial art will be handled by Otis Shepard.

Aram Torossian, lecturer in architecture at the University of California, will conduct the class in the art of building as concerned with domestic architecture. It will have its first meeting Wednesday evening, January 16, in the Pacific building.

Bartholdi's Great Work

One of the most beautiful fountains to be found anywhere in the United States is the Bartholdi fountain located near the Botanic Gardens in Washington, D. C.

This fountain was designed by Frederic Augustus Bartholdi, the noted French sculptor, who achieved world fame as the creator of the Statue of Liberty which stands in New York harbor. The fountain was one of the attractive features of the Centennial exposition at Philadelphia in 1876. At the close of the exposition it was purchased by Congress for the exceedingly small sum of $6000.

It is 30 feet in height and weighs 15,000 pounds. The basin, in which are planted water lilies, is 90 feet in diameter. In the center is a triangular pedestal, with aquatic monsters and fishes spouting water. Three beautiful female Caryatides, 11 feet high, support a basin 13 feet in diameter. An upper basin is upheld by three infant Tritons. The whole is surmounted by a mural crown.

Surrounding the fountain in all directions are beautiful trees, shrubbery and flowers of every description. In the background may be observed the dome of the capitol.

The Mary May residence is occupied for a week or two by Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Kennedy of Stockton.

Warning to Hunters

No hunting, fishing or trespassing of any kind is allowed on the San Francisquito and San Carlos ranchos. Violators will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law. H. J. Dunn, Superintendent. adv tf

Paintings of Carmel Shown in Pasadena

"Carmel in all her fascinating moods right here in the heart of Pasadena," says the Times-Star of that city concerning and impromptu showing of Elizabeth Strong's paintings in the new studio exchange. Continuing, the paper says:

"In these landscapes is that peculiar aliveness characteristic of the animal portraits which made her famous both in America and Europe.

"Miss Strong's work has depth, strength and freshness of color. As one French critic wrote when she was exhibiting every year in the Paris salon, 'Elizabeth Strong is distinctly a colorist.'"
